Hi

We just wanted to emphasise our support for the planning application for the new Lidl on New Hey Road. I hope this time the council will see sense and also see the amount of local support there is for this to be put through.

Lidl have gone away after the refusal and amended all the points the council put against it, they are still interested and keen to go ahead in our local area which is brilliant.

I have lived in this area for 50+ years, and based on how many new houses the council have put through even though there has been so much support against them its about time they started adding to the local services to support the community they have forced upon us. There is one small supermarket a few hundred yards away, it has far too small a car park making it dangerous and it has a limited choice. Now we have all these new houses we need a new facilities, supermarkets, doctors schools etc so this is a start.

About time the coucillors started to vote according to the voters wishes. Hopefully they will put this through this time....no more excuses
